David Frank Director of Development

David has 20 years experience working on complicated mixed-use, commercial, and high-density residential projects as a project manager both in Minneapolis and in Portland, Oregon.

David started his career working in acquisitions and finance for Harsch Investment Corp. in Portland, Oregon. After five years he moved into commercial mortgage banking and focused his attention on large urban projects. David also spent 6 years working on urban redevelopment for the Portland Development Commission.

As Director of Development Frank's responsibilities include evaluating potential development opportunities, coordinating project action steps with members of the development team, and identifying new multifamily and commercial opportunities. David has been instrumental in obtaining the necessary entitlements to commence the development of the East Bank Mills site and will continue to directly supervise the redevelopment of East Bank Mills.

David, his Wife Wendy, and daughter Kira live in one of Schafer Richardson's recent condo projects in downtown Minneapolis's North Loop neighborhood where he also serves as neighborhood association president. David also serves on the Steering Committee for 2010 Partners, a public & private effort to coordinate development and transportation in the public realm around the new Minnesota Twins ballpark.
