Maureen Michalski Project Manager

Maureen began her career working in real estate development at Accessible Space (ASI), a national developer of affordable, multifamily housing for elderly and disabled individuals. After three years at ASI Maureen joined Twin Cities' based affordable housing developer Aeon (then Central Community Housing Trust). At Aeon she managed the development and financing of large Low Income Housing and Historic Tax Credit rental developments. Her experience has included managing land use entitlement processes, working with urban infill and brown-field sites, grant writing and project fundraising, and negotiating relocation of businesses and individuals.

As a Project Manager at Schafer Richardson, Maureen is responsible for guiding overall project direction and coordination including: outreach to community groups and other stakeholders, coordinating staff and project consultants, managing project financing, and evaluating potential development projects.

Maureen lives in the Bryn Mauer neighborhood with her husband Jeff and their well-fed cats Rufus and Sean.
